

WHO I AM

I'm a front-end developer who really enjoys designing creative and robust solutions to many kinds of problems.

As I am also an economist, I like to find the perfect mix between design and efficiency. I am a lifelong learner.

With over 10 years in the financial sector, especially corporate finance, and a couple of years teaching economics, I have tons of experience as a team player and storyteller.

In my personal opinion, it is very important to be part of a group that promotes diversity and respect. In that sense, empathy is the word and the action that best defines me.
